What can you expect?

An interesting and diverse apprenticeship as the basis for your future career. We believe that introduction days, seminars and projects are an integral part of a good apprenticeship just as much as good mentoring by our instructors. Preparations for the examinations supplement the training. You will be trained in modern gravure printing machines. You will pass through different departments, such as engraving, colour preparation and reproduction. We also offer the opportunity to learn another printing process.

What do you need?

In order to be accepted as a trainee printing media technologist, you need at least a good secondary school leaving certificate. You must have good technical understanding and are able to work in a team. You also have a good eye for colour.

Reliability, a willingness to acquire new skills, team spirit, a sense of responsibility and high motivation and commitment are prerequisites for the above-mentioned tasks.

How long will the training take?

Your training with Interprint will last three years.
